PRICE TWO CENTS

EXAMINATIONS IN CITY COMPLETED

Col. Crawford and Party Leave Here This Afternoon For New Albany.

100 APPLICANTS EXAMINED

More Than Three Fourths of Number Appeared Before the Officers on Monday.

Col. Crawford and party who came here Monday morning to make the mental and physical examinations of applicants for the second officers' training camp at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, completed their work this afternoon and left for New Albany where they will be in session for two days. From New Albany the board will go to Evansville, then to Vincennes, Bloomington and Terre Haute.

About one hundred men were examined during the two-days' session in this city. More than three-fourths of the total number were examined Monday, less than twenty appearing today. Col. Crawford stated this afternoon that those who failed to come before the board in this city would be examined if they went to New Albany while the board was in session there. There are four or five yet to be examined and it is probably that they have reconsidered their desire to enter the second camp.

Col. Crawford is a man of striking personality. Upon first meeting him one is impressed with his sincerity of purpose. He is stern and every action and every word proves that he is an exacting commanding officer. In questioning a man who had applied for entrance to the second camp, the applicant prefaced a remark with the two words, "I guess." "But, what do you know about it?" quickly queried Col. Crawford.

After Col. Crawford has spoken a few words he is found to be accommodating and willing to assist the men in whatever way he can. It is evident that he takes his work seriously, but can enjoy the lighter side of life as well.

In speaking of the second camp, the Colonel said that the original plan provided for the men from Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and a part of Pennsylvania to take the training at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, but that the Pennsylvania men would be assigned to another camp. He said that the change was probably due to the over-crowded condition at the camp. The barracks are not large enough to accommodate 5,000 men, he said, and while that number could be housed in close quarters during the summer months, it would be impossible to take care of that number during the winter months.

He said that the second camp would

FIVE-CENT BREAD WILL BE ELIMINATED WEDNESDAY

Local Bakers Announce That After That Date Only 10 and 15-cent Loaves Will be Made.

Again Seymour bakers have announced an increase in the price of bread. On and after Wednesday the five-cent loaf of bread will be a thing of the past and the price per loaf will be ten and fifteen cents.

It was explained by one baker today that the increase was brought on at this time owing to the fact that they were forced to pay a much higher price for flour. Although flour has been soaring to a high price for several months, the local bakers had their flour contracted for before the prices went up but that supply has been used up, and they are now forced to pay the higher prices.

SEES BENEFIT IN LEAGUE OF CITIES

Mayor Ross, President, Pleased with Results in Electric Light Case Before Commission.

PART OF PETITION DISMISSED

Interstate Company Retail Privilege to Ask for Advance in Power Rates.

The Interstate Public Service Company of Indiana has dismissed its petition filed with the Public Service Commission to raise electric rates in this city for lighting use, according to a report brought back by Mayor John A. Ross, who attended the hearing before the commission in the senate room of the state house Monday. However, the portion of the petition asking the privilege to increase the power rate is still before the commission.

Mayor Ross is much pleased with the splendid success obtained through the efforts of the Consumers' Protective League, of which organization he is president, and feels that the public in general has been greatly benefited by the League's efforts.

The date for a hearing of the case in the efforts to secure a thirty per cent. advance in the power rate in this city and many other places has not as yet been fixed but it is expected to come up within a few weeks. Every effort will be put forth by the League to prevent the increase as it is the opinion of many consumers that the company is making a reasonable profit from the present rate charged.

"We beat them in attendance at the hearing," Mayor Ross stated, "and were prepared to fight to a finish." According to Mayor Ross, who has had opportunities to attend several hearings before the public service commission, the utility companies are generally represented by a larger attendance of representatives than the public in general.

The Consumers' League members were armed with many letters from municipally owned electric plants who charge a lower rate than that of the utility companies tending to show that with the present high prices of coal and other materials, they were making a reasonable profit. Upon this information the members of the League were to contend to the Commission that the companies in Indiana asking for increased rates were making reasonable profits on their investments.

The League which was perfected to fight the utility companies' petitions will continue in operation until all cities have had their cases properly disposed of. The attorneys employed by the League will fight the petition asking for an increase in the electric power rate in this city when it comes up for a hearing before the commission.

BIG WAR CREDIT ASKED OF ENGLAND BY BONAR LAW

With New Appropriation Total War Expenditures Aggregate $25,719,120,000.

By United Press. London, July 24—A vote of credit for 650,000,000 pounds approximately $3,159,000 was introduced in the house of commons today by Chancellor of the Exchequer Bonar Law.

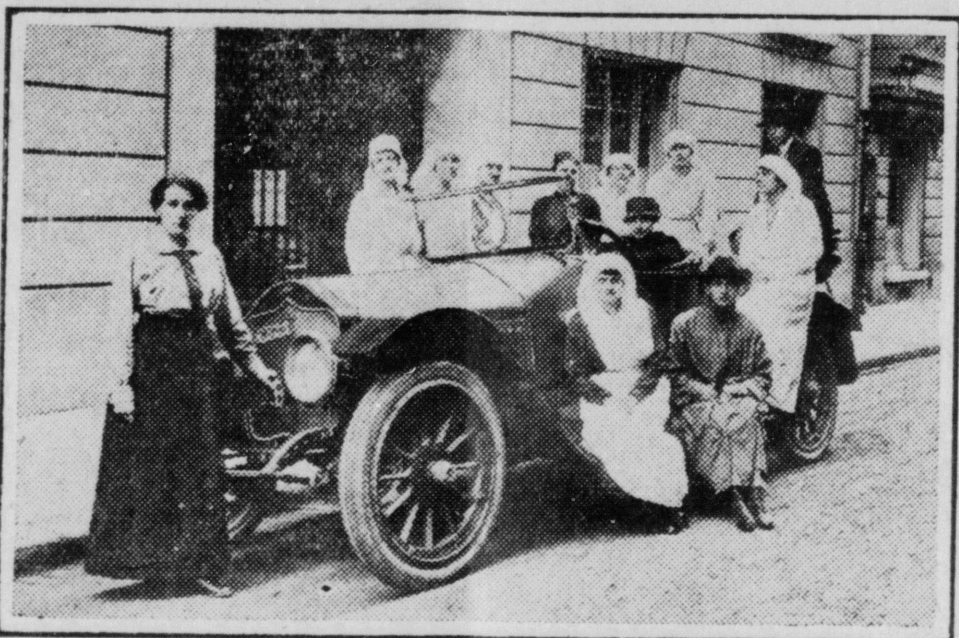

With today's budget England's total of expenditures since the start of the war will reach 5,292,000,000 pounds (approximately $25,719,120,000).

NEW CHIMES HEARD.

First National Bank's Gift to Public is in Use.

Persons having occasion to be in the vicinity of the First National Bank this afternoon were attracted by the new chimes clock which is now in operation and supplies the public in general with the time of day. The clock strikes every fifteen minutes and announces that another quarter of an hour, one-ninth-sixth of a day, has past. Many favorable comments are being heard about the new public time piece which is attracting much attention.

COUNTY BOARD TO GET COMPENSATION

Attorney-General Rules that Expenses under Registration Law Must be Paid.

SUCH BILLS ARE HELD LEGAL

Claims Filed under Constitutional Convention Act, However, are Declared Invalid.

All expenses incurred under the registration law which was enacted by the last Indiana legislature are valid and must be paid, according to a ruling which has been given by Ele Stansbury, attorney-general of Indiana, to Gilbert R. Hendren, chief of the state accounting board. Under this ruling the members of the Jackson county registration board will be paid for the thirty-one days they served and all other bills incurred for the registration will be settled.

Willard Stout, county clerk, stated today that up to this time the only bills settled were those filed by the Burford Printing Company, of Indianapolis, for stationery and supplies, and the claim of Harvey L. McCord, sheriff, for posting the required notices in the various townships prior to the convening of the board in June. The claims of members of the board will not be presented for allowance until the county commissioners meet on the first Monday in August. Each member filed a claim of $4 per day for each of the thirty days the board was in session.

Now that the attorney-general has given a ruling on the question of allowing the claims all controversy over the point has been removed and the payment will be crowded by the commissioners when they met in August. Since the constitutional convention law was declared unconstitutional and the registration was made for the specific purpose of the special election scheduled in September, there was considerable argument as to whether or not claims for services rendered under a law that is declared unconstitutional could be legally paid. In some counties where the claims of the board members were paid immediately upon adjournment the county officials feared that they might be required to pay back such amounts.

Under the ruling of the attorney-general all incurred under the Constitutional convention law are illegal. In this county no bills were made under that law. The payment of the registration board members is declared valid by the attorney-general because of a marked distinction between the registration law, which has not been attacked in the courts, and the Constitutional convention law which has been declared invalid.

Request by Goodrich.

Indianapolis, July 24—Following a conference this afternoon between Governor James P. Goodrich and Adjutant-General Harry B. LITTLE REST FOR TROOPS ON SUNDAY

Munition Drivers Must Repair Their Machines Ready for Inspection at 7 a. m.

LETTER FROM ROLAND MORE

Soldiers on French Front Attend Small Church Which is Damaged by Shell.

Roland More, brother of the Rev. J. H. More, pastor of the Presbyterian church, writes another interesting letter regarding his experiences on the French front where he is engaged as a munition driver. Sunday, instead of being a day of rest for the troops, is one of the hardest days of the week, Mr. More writes.

His letter, the latter part of which was deleted by the censor, is as follows:

Sunday Morning, July 1st, 1917.

All that Sunday means to us in the ammunition transport section is the unwelcome fact that we must arise at 5 a. m. no matter what time we rolled in the night before and then go over all the parts of our car for a special inspection at 7 o'clock. I am beginning to realize what it means to have one's hardest day on Sunday. In an hour I am going up to a service in a little French church that forms the nucleus for a small group of houses known as the town of—. The church was built in 1640. In 1777 with the advice of the council, all the men were put to work on a steeple, which was blown away the other day. There is a plate near the door giving the names of the men who

The husband was formerly a member of Company K, Indiana National Guard, and for two months was with the company on the Mexican border. When he returned Mrs. Donnell procured his discharge from the service and a short time later he deserted her, she alleges.

SHIPPING BOARD IS REORGANIZED

Chairman Denman Resigns on Request of President—E. M. Hurley Named as Successor.

GOETHALS ALSO STEPS OUT

Administration Makes Sweeping Changes to End Controversy That Delayed Work.

By United Press.

Washington, July 14—Sweeping steps were taken by President Wilson to put an end to delay in building America's great merchant marine.

Two resignations—those of General Goethals, manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and Capt. White, member of the shipping board—were accepted. Chairman Denman, of the shipping board, was asked to resign and he responded immediately.

At the same time the President announced the appointment of Edwin M. Hurley, of Chicago, as chairman of the shipping board, and Admiral Capps, naval constructor, as general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

Brainbridge Colby of New York, was named in White's place on the shipping board.

"We will start with a clean sheet," the President explained in his letter to Goethals, accepting the General's resignation offer.

It was evident from the promptness with which the President acted in every particular that he has had the "house cleaning" in mind for some days.

The stepping out of the canal builder came as a complete surprise to Washington. It was believed the President would make one last attempt to mollify the two contending men and get them to work together in the ship construction program facing the government.

RED CROSS WILL HAVE CHARGE OF THEATERS

To Receive Receipts at Majestic Wednesday Night and at Strand Thursday Night.

In accordance with an agreement made by the management of the Majestic and Strand electric theaters with the Red Cross Chapter some time ago, arrangements have been made for the receipts from the Majestic Wednesday night and from the Strand on Thursday night to go to the Red Cross Fund. It is expected that both theaters will show to large audiences on the Red Cross nights.

This liberal offer was made by the management of the theaters to the local chapter and the combined receipts from the two houses ought to net a substantial sum for the advancement of the Red Cross work. In this way the public can enjoy a first class motion picture show and at the same time contribute for a worthy cause.

RUSSIA TO INVOKE STRICT MEASURES

German Spies and Traitors to be Shot Down, if That is Necessary to Restore Democracy.

TEUTONIC PLOTS UNEARTHED

Petrograd Hoping That Kerensky Will Perform Another Maracle on Southwestern Front.

By United Press.

Petrograd, July 24—Russia will shoot down as traitors the mutineers in her armies and the German spies in her cities.

Clothed with "unlimited powers" the new people's cabinet was prepared today to invoke measures of bloodshed to stop the rout of the southeast army and to clean out the nest of German agents scattered throughout the nation. A proclamation declaring that all who disobeyed the provisional government's "battle orders," will be regarded as "traitors and cowards," and "shown no mercy" was issued today.

Petrograd is hoping that Premier Kerensky will again perform a miracle at the front. With Tarnopol gone and the Teutonic armies pushing forward on a front of close to forty miles, the whole of the Russian line as far north as Tinsk is menaced. Turning of the Russian flank may be attempted. In Petrograd strong forces of soldiers and special agents began today a systematic uprooting of the German spy system as well as a sorting out of all suspicious troops.

The existence of a huge German plot to overturn the new democracy by a revolution was definitely proved today by wholesale arrests in the capital. It was German money that incited the anarchists last week to treason. Millions have been spent in hatching the scheme.

B. & O. EMPLOYEES TOLD OF LIBERTY LOAN PLAN

W. W. Wood, of First Vice-President's Office, Explains Advantages Offered by Company.

W. W. Wood, a representative of the first vice-president's office of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at Baltimore, addressed the company employees in this city at the office buildings at 12:30 today noon in which he encouraged every employee to purchase Liberty Loan bonds. He explained the special plan adopted by the railroad company in supplying their employees through which they can pay a small amount on their purchase each month until they have paid out.

"Never before did the public have a chance to purchase bonds in such small amounts," Mr. Wood stated, "and there is no reason why every employee should not purchase at least one bond," he said. He explained in detail the company's plan in supplying their employees with Liberty bonds and as a result many of the company employees are planning to take advantage of the offer.

Mr. Wood spoke from 12:30 until 1:15 p. m., affording all an opportunity to hear him without losing any time from their regular routine of work.

worked on the steeple and the amount of work they did. The inside is all covered with moss—so that on a hot day the walls look green and glisten with the dew like a cave under the river. On the walls are a few old oil painting the product of some unknown artist. These paintings depict the sufferings of the saints, and are liberally smeared with gobs of red paint.

It is rather hard on the little congregation when it rains, many of the pews being under the open steeple. It reminds me of your story of the colored preacher who wished to have the abscess in the ceiling frescoed. There are services in the early morning in French, and at 10:30 a French chaplain who speaks English fairly well gives us an address, dealing with the effect of the war on the Christian faith in particular, and on the general morality of the people. Many of the men at the early service are new troops, who appear to be in very high spirits. I pity the poor fellows when they strike the trenches, and try their hand at the game of modern warfare.

A French officer offers to put me in training for position as officer in either the French or English artillery or in the aviation corp, but I suppose the folks would prefer that I take my training in the States, and so should I.

There is a notice up on the bulletin board now to the effect that all Americans eligible for draft must register with the provost marshal five days after landing. The Old U. S. must be getting right into it. Unless they hurry and get a good army over here, they will see very little fighting, as it is the opinion that the war will not last long now. This is my opinion also—provided that Russia can only get started again. They are waiting until they can shift some troops from the French and English fronts to help the Russians and then you will see another big offensive.

I have seen a little action of late—in fact have been under direct shell fire four or five times and frequently have been forced to seek shelter in the dug-outs. We have been cited once for especially good work under direct fire. If we receive two more citations we receive the gold Croix d'Guerre or something like that. They never cite the men for good work, but only the trucks, until a truck has been cited three times and then the drivers are awarded the medals.

One shell sent three of our trucks to the scrap heap, and a piece of another shell took a little slice out of my steering wheel, though not enough to interfere with the driving. I have saved some of the shrapnel I dug out from underneath the seat of my car, and shall keep it for a souvenir. This sounds very dangerous—but in reality we are in the dugouts during most of the shelling. It is surely a queer sensation to be under direct shell fire, and interesting to notice the different effect it has on the soldiers. For some strange reason I always feel like laughing. Brother Hermon is in the ambulance work and I hope to see years, despite her age, she has been vice president of the Armstrong league, which concerns itself especially with the dissemination of information regarding the Indian and the negro.

Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

It has been the policy of Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie to shield their daughter as much as possible from publicity.

The world awaits with interest the special use this heiress of the Carnegie millions will make of her opportunity.

DISH WASHING.

How to Do This Drudgery Fairly Easily.

Save up your soiled dishes and wash them only once a day. By so doing you can save something like an hour and a quarter a week. Eleven minutes per day was the actual time saved in a recent experiment.

Piles of dishes waiting to be washed three times a day year in and year out throw a damper over the finest of housekeepers. If only the drudgery of dish washing could be disposed of once a day instead of morning, noon and night kitchen work would be in greater demand than it is.

The careful housekeeper will always resent the suggestion that once a day is often enough to wash dishes. She cannot train herself to allow soiled plates and silverware to stack up from one meal to the next, for she has been taught that such actions are the evidence of shiftless, slovenly housekeeping. As a matter of fact, along with many other notions which are fixed in the operation of the home both time and energy are saved by cutting out two of the three daily dish washing jobs.

The experience of one housekeeper bears out this statement as true. "One week I washed dishes twenty-one times," she says. "The next week I washed dishes seven times. During the two weeks I planned the meals so that the same number of dishes could be used on each day. I found that while it took fifty-two minutes each day to wash my dishes three times it took only forty-one minutes a day when I washed them all at once."

This statement takes no account of the interruption of other duties. It does not estimate the amount of gas or fuel saved by heating water to boiling but once instead of three times a day and nothing of the soap saved.

Cucumber Pickles.

Twenty-four large cucumbers. Cover with boiling water (be sure water is boiling) and a piece of alum size of top of the thumb. After five minutes lift the cucumbers out, wipe dry carefully. Put into stone jar, cover with cold cider vinegar and small piece of alum. Put cover on. In a few days a scum arises give new vinegar and alum, then cover and put away.

LACE REVIVAL.

Miles of It Are Being Used to Trim Garments.

Another change in fashions which is creating a stir of interest in this country is the lavish use of lace. France had much of it in reserve, but she made it fashionable in order to give the women and older children a chance to earn money through wartime. Thousands of the Belgian lace makers are refugees in France, and to revive the fashion for lace was to make these exiles self supporting.

The American designers jump with joy over the idea of putting lace on gowns, for there must be miles of it stored away in this country waiting for a chance to see the sunlight. Now there will be a chance to use it up for frocks, wraps, blouses, peplums, hats, parasols and accessories. The designers are even putting precious lace on satin frocks for the afternoon, and afternoon gowns are made of a new kind of shadow lace in ecru or oyster white dropped over a black satin sheath lining.

The success of the peplum or outside blouse will give an impetus to loose waists that can be girdled in with Chinese brocade or with the new brilliant ribbons copied from antique designs. These blouses may be lined with white or colored chiffon or silk net and worn with any kind of skirt.

Jenny has brought up the crocheted lace of the Roumanian peasants, and this, in string or biscuit color, makes an admirable peplum blouse over a dark or light skirt for country club wear.

Another method of using lace as an accessory is to drape it in the form of broad suspenders over the shoulders, let it drop to the hips and then cascade it there to give the oval silhouette.

Cheruit makes a gown of cafe au lait crepe de chine in a straight line from head to foot, with half the skirt of black crepe de chine. From shoulders to hips there are draped suspenders of black Chantilly lace.

Salad Suggestions.

Salads of Fresh Vegetables.—Lettuce, radishes, cucumbers; tomatoes stuffed with cucumbers; lettuce and sliced tomatoes; lettuce, radishes and onions; cold slaw with green peppers; tomatoes and green peppers.

Salads of Cooked Vegetables.—Beets, string beans; beans and onions; beets, potatoes, onions; mixed vegetables.

Fruit Salads.—Apple, cabbage and nuts; canned pears and cheese; canned or fresh cherries and nuts; canned or fresh peaches cut into strips.

To make salads attractive use flavors which blend and colors which harmonize.

Salad dressings, with the exception of French dressing, should be thick.

Garnishings should be dry, since water thins the dressing.

To Get Rid of Ants.

Borax sprinkled around will sometimes drive away ants. If this fails, however, get a little tartar emetic at the druggist's and sprinkle around. Tartar emetic is a poison, and one should be careful that it does not get near the food and that children are kept away from it.

A Good Garden Hint.

If before working and planting in the garden you will rub the fingers, especially around the nails, very thoroughly with a good soft soap you can very easily wash off the dirt afterward, thus avoiding the annoyance of a grimy looking pair of hands.

HOW A FOOT RACE WAS LOST.

Fleet Footed Princess Tock Great Delight In Displaying Her Marvelous Speed—Delay to Pick Up Golden Apples Caused Her Defeat.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, I will tell you about A FAMOUS RUNNER.

Once there was a girl who could run faster than any man alive. This girl was a princess, the daughter of the king of Acadia. She had been well brought up, but she cared more for playing ball and running races and such boys' sports than she did for the nice ladylike amusements that her mother preferred for her.

Atalanta could run faster than the swiftest deer, it was said.

She was fond of daring other people to run races, and if they were strangers their surprise that a slender girl could outrun them was a treat for her at the end of the race.

As she grew up many handsome young princes would have liked to marry the princess, but she would have none of them.

"I won't have any one who can't run faster than I can," the spoiled princess would exclaim.

So whenever a new prince came along and asked her to marry him she would say very sweetly:

"Certainly, sir, if you can beat me in a race."

Every time the young man would be beaten.

But one day Hippomenes, a handsome young man of Acadia, said that he would like to run a race with the princess provided she would marry him if he could outrun her.

He was a very good looking young man, and Atalanta smiled at him as they started out, but she did not intend to let him beat her.

When they had gone a little way and Atalanta was just a little in front of Hippomenes he reached into his cloak and, drawing out a golden apple, sent it rolling in front of the girl.

There was plenty of time, and she stopped to pick up the apple. Thus Hippomenes got a little ahead of her. When she caught up he threw another apple, and she stopped to get that one, sure she could make up lost time before the end of the race. But Hippomenes had a third apple, and he threw it so cleverly that Atalanta lost the race. He reached the goal first.

There was a grand wedding, and Hippomenes and Atalanta would have lived very happily had they not chanced to offend one of the gods. For this they were turned into lions. So whenever you see a lion or a lioness you can think of these two wonderful racers and the pretty story the old Greeks made up about them.

When he was tasting some dessert
He found within a cup,
A savage cat caught sight of him
And quickly ate him up.

The Evidence Is at Your Door.

Seymour proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt:

Mrs. Laura Arnold, 724 W. Laurel St., Seymour, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble a whole summer and when Fall came on, I got so bad I could hardly keep going. My back was sore and weak and I had dreadful pains across my loins, which sapped my energy. I could hardly stand long enough to wash the dishes. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and I had inflammation of the bladder. I became nervous and irritable. I couldn't sleep well. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Meyer's Drug Store and they did me a lot of good, relieving all symptoms of kidney complaint."

Mother's Doll Story

The Pet Owl

Once upon a time there was a lot of cousins who had great fun playing in a big barn. They used to run and jump off the great mow right into the sweet, hot hay. And when they were tired of playing hide and go seek they used to swing from the great beams and drop right down on to the floor, all soft with hayseed.

One day the biggest boy found a young owl perched high up in the peak of the barn on a big beam.

Young owls can't see very well, you know. So the biggest boy picked the young owl right up in his hand and carried him into the house.

"Oh, mother," he cried, "could you make Jack a rag owl to play with? Because he just lost his willow whistle, you know."

Now, their mother was very clever with sewing things, so she cut some brown cloth in just the shape of the young owl and stuffed it. She embroidered a beak and neck feathers and sewed two bright buttons among them for eyes. And when it was all finished the biggest boy let the real young owl fly away into a little tree, where he hooted his thanks.

Game of Butterfly.

Each girl is given a butterfly fashioned of crape paper perched on a stem about two feet long. Each boy receives a net, also fastened on a handle. Two lines are marked off about thirty feet apart, or a wide space between trees may be chosen. The boys take the position opposite the girls and try to catch in their nets the butterflies which the girls hold out temptingly as they sway and swing on the ends of the wire nets. As each girl's butterfly is caught she is out of the game, and when all are captured the sport is over.

The Gingerbread Man.

The Gingerbread Man,
Who lives in a can
On grandmother's cookie shelf,
Just waits all the day
For grandma to say,
"Now, my dear, go help yourself."
Yes, he smiles at me
Right lovingly
While I eat his raisin eyes.
I nibble his toes
And his icing nose,
And he never even cries.
Oh, it is a shame!
I know I'm to blame.
There's nothing to do, you see,
But to eat my friend
And so put an end
To all of his misery.

LAD GETS LEGION OF HONOR CROSS

Twenty-Year-Old Alsacian Awarded Medal for Remarkable Service for French.

IN CAMPAIGN ON THE YSER

Youngster Served as Observer in Big Tree Which Was Splintered by German Shell.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 24—The cross of the Legion of Honor has been conferred upon a twenty-one year old Alsacian by the name of Alt as the result of a most remarkable career in the French army, prompted solely by his great desire to see his native province of Alsace reunited to France.

Alt's services in the Alsacian cause have now been cut short by the loss of one leg. Although the cross of the Legion of Honor is designed to recompense him in part for this, he declares the recompense that alone will satisfy him will be the ultimate return of Alsace to France.

Alt, has been from his boyhood, one of the most ardent champions of the Alsacian cause. When the war broke out he was at Toul. Although only 18 years of age then, he enlisted in the French Foreign Legion and made the campaign on the Yser. With twenty-seven wounds in his body, he was left on the Belgian battlefield for dead, but was later picked up and taken to a hospital.

The doctors declare that it was his determination to get well and keep on fighting for Alsace that pulled him through. Hardly was he out of the hospital than he was back in the French ranks demanding to be assigned to the most perilous tasks.

Alt had been serving for some time as an observer in a large tree far in advance of the French lines. Eventually the tree fell under suspicion of the Germans and they at once surrounded it with a barrage fire that made escape practically impossible. The Germans directed shell after shell at the tree, until one struck squarely and felled it to the ground. In the fall, Alt received wounds that made it impossible for him to flee. From nine in the morning till midnight Alt lay on the ground, hoping almost against hope.

At midnight, the barrage ceased and a German sergeant and two soldiers crept out of their trenches to take Alt prisoner. He drew his revolver, waited till they were close, and shot all three.

French comrades reached the wounded Alsacian and carried him back to their lines.

The Legion of Honor was conferred in Alt at the hospital where he is recovering from the amputation of his leg.

Women too Ambitious.

Excessive ambition leads all sorts of women to exert themselves beyond their strength. The girl striving for honors in school, the busy housewife, the shop-girl, the society climber or leader, all overtax their natural powers of endurance. Then come nervous troubles, backaches, headaches, frequently organic troubles, which reduces them almost to despair.

Women suffering thus should first recognize the necessity of putting on the brakes and slowing down. Besides this, to remedy the mischief already done to their health, the best reliance is upon that famous and standard medicine for women's ailments, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

POSSE FORMED TO OUST GYPSY CAMP AT AZALIA

Sheriff Gives Order to Fire but Strangers Beat Hurried Retreat to Bushes.

(Columbus Republican)

It is a mistake to assume that an army cannot be raised in a Quaker neighborhood. Sheriff Shaw demonstrated that men will bear arms, even in the vicinity of Azalia, if the provocation is sufficient.

Nearly a dozen men at Azalia armed themselves with shot guns Saturday night and followed the sheriff in an advance on a gypsy camp, at the Azalia school house. No blood was spilled and the enemy retreated in bad order—as well as bad odor.

Nearly 100 gypsies, some in good looking touring cars, stopped at the school building Saturday night and went into camp. They began stealing things in Azalia and over-ran the Azalia stores. A call was sent to the sheriff. That official responded and ordered the gang to move on. The chief replied that the township trustee had given permission for them to camp in the school yard. Joel Wilson, township trustee, denied this. Sheriff Shaw again gave the order to move. The gypsies declined.

Then Sheriff Shaw returned to Azalia and began recruiting. As soon as his force was mustered in he gave the command. They found the gypsies sitting around a camp fire, eating their supper.

Sheriff Shaw trained the lights of his automobile on the encampment.

"Don't shoot the women and children," he called to his army: "aim at the men."

The men did not stand on the order of their going. They knocked over the supper and beat it for the bushes. The women screamed and the children howled.

U.S. AGENTS WORK IN REAL SECRECY

Federal Police Service is One of the Most Perfect Systems in the World.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

This Division of Government is a Vital Force in Hunting Enemy Spies.

By United Press.

Washington, July 24—Uncle Sam doesn't make as much noise about his secret police agents as Kaiser Bill does about his Wilhelmstresse but the star spangled sleuths get there just the same.

The United States has one of the biggest secret police systems in the world.

It centers in Washington. It is composed of:

1—The Bureau of Investigation, Department of Justice, headed by Bruce Lielaski. In peace times this organization hunted white slavers, anti drug violators, and other offenders. Now it hunts German spies and pro-kaiserites.

2—The Secret Service, headed by Chief Flynn. Its main duties are to catch counterfeiters for the Treasury Department, and furnish the President a secret service squad.

3—Secret police systems of other government departments—such as post office inspectors to nab mail law violators.

The army and navy have their own means of getting information of military value.

The biggest job right now is war work. The Secret Service throws its tentacles in every direction feeling for plotters against the President. The Bureau of Investigation muzzles disloyalist schemes. The army and navy sleuths dig into enemy war plans.

In their hunt for anti-American agitators, Uncle Sam's secret police mingle with crowds, participate in mass-meetings, use the telephone. If a mob gathers, the chances are a quiet gentleman with a little badge in his pocket is among those present. They incline an ear to the ravings of pro-Germans and by mysterious methods become aware of what America's forces are doing in Berlin as well as in New York.

Through channels Sherlock Holmes could never discover reports come regularly into Washington, and orders go out. Many Kaiser boosters, although they remain blissfully ignorant of it, are watched by the government as a cat watches a mouse. Their doings and sayings are systematically chronicled and filed away for reference in Washington.

Detailed reports come in, dealing with actions of persons thousands of miles away in alien lands, and right here at home in Chicago, New Orleans or Los Angeles. If the Kaiser says anything worth while in his sleep, Washington has a good chance of hearing it.

An examination will be held in this city August 11 under civil service rules for the appointment of a charwoman for the new postoffice building. The place will pay $300 a year. The distribution of blanks will be made on and after July 30. Applicants must be between the ages of twenty and fifty years. The duties will be such as scrubbing, dusting and cleaning up the building.

John Connelly has accepted a position at the local office of the C. T. H. & S-E. Railroad. He was employed by the Indianapolis Telephone Company before returning here to take his new position.

THE DRAFT.

Within a few days 196 Jackson county men will be called to the colors under the conscription act. It is, of course, with profound regret that our people will see them depart, but it must be remembered that they are entering upon the most patriotic and heroic duty that they can perform. They will become soldiers of their country and will take upon themselves the active work of making the world a safe place for a free people. The most honored men in all history are those who have fought for the preservation of their countries. The most valiant heroes in American history are those who have battled for the protection and the defense of Old Glory. The men who shall go from this county to wage war for the defense and preservation of this country shall be numbered with the great men of other generations.

The selection of the men who shall march forth under the Red, White and Blue will be made in accordance with strict rules which have been prescribed by the government. Those who shall be summoned before the exemption board must remember that social or political influence cannot be used to keep them at home. This war is the nation's war. Every man who lives under the protection of the American flag and is eligible for service under the prescribed rules must do his part.

It is well that politics or other influences are not to be considered. No greater mistake can be made in military circles than to permit politics to determine questions which may arise. In a crisis like this members of all parties are first American citizens. Their first duty is to their government. All enjoy the same privileges and the same degree of protection. Accordingly all must answer the call to colors when that summons is sounded.

Jackson county is proud of its company of National Guardsmen and it will be proud of its men who are called under the selective service act to become members of the great American army of a half million strong, stalwart men. These men are engaged upon the nation's business. They are engaged upon the people's business. They are fighting to make American rights secure and to prevent destruction in this country such as was wrought upon some of the European provinces early in the war. The public recognizes its soldiers as heroes and Jackson county men will be accorded deserved praise and honor.

JUDICIOUS SAVING.

Judicious Economy is what is demanded in this county and if that is practiced there is little danger of Americans going hungry. The State Council of Defense issued the following bulletin regarding economy:

Nobody is expected to stint himself—certainly no one is being asked to go hungry in the Hoover food conservation campaign.

There has never been a time when the food supply of the county was more adequate for the demand provided:

First—That there is no waste.
 Second—That every housewife economize.
 Third—That the Hoover suggestion be observed.
 Fourth—That wheat especially be replaced by corn, fruits or vegetables.
 Fifth—That meat be consumed only as the physical requirements demand.

Saving one-third the wheat supply is the primary object of the national food conservation campaign inaugurated by means of voluntary pledges of housewives, by Herbert C. Hoover, federal food administrator.

To save one-third the wheat supply every family must immediately cease throwing away bread that has dried out; must use the crusts; carefully store bread to the end that it does not mold; buy and bake only such pies and pastry as the family requirements call for.

In some communities pie baking has been abandoned; in others it has been agreed that by the exercise of greater care, every ounce of the loaf will be consumed, in some form or other; and in every state in the Union the return to the bakeries of unsold bread has been discontinued.

There are practical ways of saving flour, which means saving wheat. If the good work goes on, as Mr. Hoover requests, there is no good reason for expecting any hardship, any hunger, any suffering, and America and her allies shall be fed.

Just as a minor thought, of course, we're wondering how the price of flour will be any lower even if congress does fix a maximum price of $2 a bushel for wheat at the primary market, if the speculators are permitted to gamble on wheat after it is once on the market. The consumer is interested in knowing that flour prices are based on actual cost and not on a speculative market.

The attorney-general of Indiana has given an opinion that the members of the county registration boards may receive compensation. He holds, however, that the expense incurred under the Constitutional convention law is illegal. It is right that the members of the board should be paid for the time they served as they accepted the appointments in good faith with the understanding that the law was said.

President Wilson's letter to Chairman Lever asking that the commission clause be stricken from the food control bill because it might be interpreted "as a lack of confidence in myself," might also be interpreted to mean that the President is not confident that he can find a board of three men that would perform the services as efficiently as he could himself.

When the women of Indiana are asked to sign the cards issued by the League for Women's Service with the understanding that they consent to be sent to any section of the country where their services are needed, they will come to the realization that the man's job in this war is something more than boy's play.

Now, that little Siam has entered the war against Germany it would appear that the kaiser will understand that his political intrigue and trickery is not in good grace with the rest of the world.

The bitter struggle between General Goethals and Chairman Denman of the shipping board indicates that the country is losing two mighty good fighters by keeping them in Washington.

One Exception.

"While the farmers are deploring the shortage of help we have a vast army of able-bodied men performing useless tasks," stated Professor Pate. "Take the solicitors who come to our doors with labor-saving utensils that absolutely must be in every household in the land, who take our cherished tin types and return enlarged crayon copies of the same that look like nobody on earth or in the waters under the earth, and so forth. If such futile trades were abolished these industrial slackers might be persuaded to help feed the nation in this crisis. I have purposely refrained from including in the list the suave gent who offers ornate literary works to the few people in each community who are of sufficient culture to appreciate them. In order to remain normal and keep well we are obliged to have somebody to hate, and for that purpose the book agent is ideal."—Kansas City Star.

SPECIAL PROGRAM TO BE GIVEN BY BAND TOMORROW

Director Adolph Steinwedel Announces That New Supply of Music Has Arrived.

The Seymour Concert Band has arranged a special program for their regular weekly concert to be given at Shields Park Wednesday evening. Director Adolph Steinwedel announces that a new supply of music has just been received and several new selections will be rendered at this concert. The selection consists of both classic and popular numbers.

One of the features of the program will be the singing of "The Battle Song of Liberty", the song with the spirit that is thrilling to the nation, which the members of the band will sing. The chorus which Director Steinwedel wishes the public in general to memorize and join in singing, follows:

"So here's to Uncle Sammy, faithful and true;
 "Here's to our banner of Red, White and Blue;
 "And here's to all good fellows on land and sea,
 "Singing the Battle Song of Liberty."

BOY A PATRIOT.

Lad Enlists and Is the Youngest on Registration List.

Sharon, Pa.—Little Alexander Ritzkove, aged seven years, is the real boy patriot of Sharon. Alexander wants to go to war. He is really sincere, and, while he admits he can't carry a gun, he is willing to bet that he can be a water boy and hold his own with the best of them.

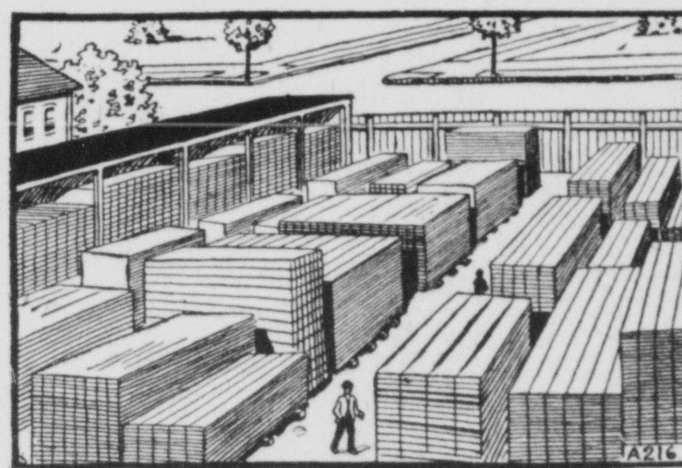

Business was booming in one of the registration polls when the youths discovered little Alexander pushing his way through the line. He stepped up to the table and demanded to be registered. The clerks had been working hard, and they grabbed at the opportunity for a bit of diversion.

"Why, you can't carry a gun, my little man," said the clerk smilingly.

"Of course not," was the quick response, "but I can carry water for the soldiers."

He was accommodated, and now Alexander can boast of being the youngest man in the country to be on Uncle Sam's registration list.

"Newspaper Has Direct Hold on the Buying Public"

—George B. Van Cleave, President George B. Van Cleave Co., New York

BEYOND any shadow of doubt, the newspaper is the most intimate medium through which advertising can be presented to the public, because, as a general proposition, its circulation covering a prescribed area, advertising returns are quickly and emphatically determined. For the same reasons its results are intensive, rather than diffusive. * * *

"Precedent—and precedent is what we should go by in the selection of media in this advertising profession—has established the place for the newspaper as unquestionably the medium for intensive advertising. For it is the newspaper of any given community that has the most intimate hold on the buying public of that community.

"Aside from the inherent editorial intimacy of the newspaper with its clientele, and the human hold that local news creates, the development of retail store advertising has done much to make the newspaper the great advertising medium which it is.

"When we find great retail merchants—John Wanamaker of New York and the host of others who have followed in his wake—spending in advertising in the daily press from 2½ to 5 per cent of their gross receipts—and spending it profitably—we begin to get some glimpse of the direct hold that the newspaper has on the buying public.

"The advertising done by the bigger type of retail merchant is so constructed and so persistent that it becomes an essential feature of the paper—just as much a feature as the cartoon, the editorial page, the woman's page or the comics. It is this feature aspect of the retail merchant's advertising which has done much to build up the prestige of the newspaper and to focus the attention of the buying public on this form of advertising medium."

TESTED THE DENTIST'S WORK

Khedive of Egypt Had Followers' Teeth Pulled So He Could See Whether It Would Hurt.

To illustrate Oriental habits of thought, Lord Cromer tells, in the Quarterly Review, this story of Ismail Pasha, the khedive of Egypt. It once happened that Ismail was suffering from toothache. He sent for a European dentist, who told him that he ought to have the tooth out. Ismail said that he was afraid it would be very painful. He was informed in reply that, if he would allow the dentist to administer laughing gas to him, he would feel nothing. He still doubted, but told the dentist to bring his apparatus to the palace and he would then discuss the question.

The dentist complied, and explained the process to the khedive. Ismail then summoned an attendant and told him to send up the sentry who was at his door.

When the man arrived the khedive ordered him to sit down in a chair, and requested the dentist to take out a tooth on either side of his jaw. Ismail then asked the man whether he had felt anything, and the man told him that he had not. But Ismail was not yet satisfied. He said that the sentry was a young, strong man, and that he would like to see the experiment tried on someone of weaker physique.

Accordingly he summoned a slave girl from the harem and had the dentist extract two of her teeth. Finding that she did not show evidence of extreme suffering, he then consented to have his own tooth out. It is related, although possibly that part of the story is apocryphal, that the dentist then received an order on the Egyptian treasury for one thousand pounds.

New Idea of Primitive Man.

A new idea of primitive man was put forward by an Irish professor recently. He states that the direct ancestors of primitive man never went on all-fours, had lived in trees, and, by climbing up and down the trunks, cultivated the upright habit of the human race. He points out that the forelimb was never used only as a support for the body. It seems quite credible, however, that they may have gone on three legs, using one as a hand when required, and this might account for the general use of the right hand in man.

FIRE DISTRICTS.

Seymour's fire map shows that the five wards are divided into twenty-two fire districts and when an alarm is given the fire bell gives the number of the ward in taps, then after a pause the district number is sounded. When calling the telephone exchange for a fire alarm always give the street and number where the fire is located. Don't attempt to call by fire districts.

CHAPTER V.

Mr. Parcher and Love.

MR. PARCHER, that unhappy gentleman, having been driven indoors from his own porch, had attempted to read "Plutarch's Lives" in the library; but, owing to the adjacency of the porch and the summer necessity for open windows, his escape spared only his eyes and not his suffering ears. The house was small, being but half of a double one, with small rooms, and the "parlor," library and dining room all about equally exposed to the porch which ran along the side of the house.

Mr. Parcher had no refuge except bed or the kitchen, and as he was troubled with chronic insomnia, and the cook had callers in the kitchen, his case was desperate. Most unfortunately, too, his reading lamp, the only one in the house, was a fixture near a window, and just beyond that window sat Miss Pratt and William in sweet unconsciousness, while Miss Pratt entertained the overflow, consisting of Mr. Johnnie Watson, at the other end of the porch.

Listening perforce to the conversation of the former couple, he found it impossible to sit still in his chair. Sometimes he gasped, and other times he moaned a little.

"Oh, cute ums!" came the sly voice of Miss Pratt from the likewise sly porch outside, underneath the summer moon. "Darlin' Flopit, look! Ickle boy Baxter goin' make imitations of darlin' Flopit again. See! Ickle boy Baxter puts head one side, then other side, just like darlin' Flopit, then barks just like darlin' Flopit! Ladies and gentlemen, imitations of darlin' Flopit by Ickle boy Baxter."

"Berp-werp! Berp-werp!" came the voice of William Sylvanus Baxter.

And in the library "Plutarch's Lives" moved convulsively, while with writhing lips Mr. Parcher muttered to himself.

"More, more!" cried Miss Pratt, clapping her hands. "Do it again, Ickle boy Baxter!"

"Berp-werp! Berp-werp-werp!"

"Word!" muttered Mr. Parcher.

Miss Pratt's voice became surcharged with honeyed wonder. "How did he learn such marvellous, marvellous imitations of darlin' Flopit? He ought to go on the big, big stage and be a really actor, oughtn't he, darlin' Flopit? He could make myriads and myriads of dollardies, couldn't he, darlin' Flopit?"

William's modest laugh disclaimed any great ambition for himself in this line. "Oh, I always could think up imitations of animals, things like that, but I hardly would care to—to adopt the stage for a career. Would—you?"

"It's my dream!" she said.

William, seated upon a stool at her feet, gazed up at the amber head, divinely splashed by the rain of moonlight. The fire with which she spoke stirred him as few things had ever stirred him. He knew she had just revealed a side of herself which she reserved for only the chosen few who were capable of understanding her, and he fell into a blissful rapture.

"Do it again, Ickle boy Baxter!"

"It was wonderful of you to say that to me," he said. "I shall never forget it!"

"It's my dream!" Miss Pratt exclaimed again, with the same enthusiasm. "It's my dream!"

"You would make a glorious actress!" he said.

At that her mood changed. She laughed a laugh like a sweet little girl's laugh (not Jane's) and, setting her rocking chair in motion, cuddled the fuzzy white doglet in her arms. "Ickle boy Baxter 't'yn' flatterbox us, tummy Flopit! No'ty, no'ty flatterbox!"

"No, no!" William insisted earnestly. "I mean it. But—but—" "But what?"

"What do you think about actors and actresses making love to each other on the stage? Do you think they have to really feel it, or do they just pretend?"

"Well," said Miss Pratt weightily, "sometimes one way, sometimes the other."

William's gravity became more and more profound. "Yes, but how can they pretend like that? Don't you think love is a sacred thing, Cousin Lola?"

Fictitious sisterhips, brotherships and cousinships are devices to push things along well known to seventeen and even more advanced ages. On the wonderful evening of their first meeting William and Miss Pratt had cozily arranged to be called respectively "Ickle boy Baxter" and "Cousin Lola." Thus they had broken down the tedious formalities of their first twenty minutes together.

"Don't you think love is sacred?" he repeated in his deepest tone.

"Ess," said Miss Pratt.

"I do!" William was emphatic. "I think love is the most sacred thing there is. I don't mean some kinds of love. I mean real love. You take some people; I don't believe they ever know what real love means. They talk about it, maybe, but they don't understand it. Love is something nobody can understand unless they feel it, and—and if they don't understand it they don't feel it. Don't you think so?"

"Ess." "Love," William continued, his voice lifting and thrilling to the great theme—"love is something nobody can ever have but one time in their lives, and if they don't have it then, why, prob'ly they never will. Now, if a man really loves a girl, why, he'd do anything in the world she wanted him to. Don't you think so?"

"Ess, 'deedums!" said the sly voice.

"But if he didn't, then he wouldn't," said William vehemently. "But when a man really loves a girl he will. Now, you take a man like that and he can generally do just about anything the girl he loves wants him to. Say, for instance, she wants him to love her even more than he does already, or almost anything like that, and supposin' she asks him to. Well, he would go ahead and do it. If they really loved each other he would!"

He paused a moment, then in a lowered tone he said, "I think real love is sacred, don't you?"

"Ess."

"Don't you think love is the most sacred thing there is—that is, if it's real love?"

"Ess."

"I do," said William warmly. "I'm glad you feel like that, because I think real love is the kind nobody could have but just once in their lives, but if it isn't real love, why—why, most people never have it at all, because—" He paused, seeming to seek for the exact phrase which would express his meaning. "Because the real love a man feels for a girl and a girl for a man, if they really love each other—and, you look at a case like that, of course they would both love each other or it wouldn't be real love—well, what I say is, if it's real love—well, it's—it's sacred, because I think that kind of love is always sacred. Don't you think love is sacred if it's the real thing?"

"Ess," said Miss Pratt. "Do Flopit again. Be Flopit!"

"Berp-werp! Berp-werp-werp!"

And within the library an agonized man writhed and muttered:

"Word! Word! WORD!"

This hoarse repetition had become almost continuous. But out on the porch, that little jasmine-scented bower in Arcady where youth cried to youth and golden heads were bared in the moonshine, there fell a silence, not utter silence, for out there an ethereal music sounded constantly, unheard and forgotten by older ears.

It was William who spoke again. "How"—he began, and his voice trembled a little—"how—how do you—how do you think of me when I'm not with you?"

"Think nice-cums," Miss Pratt responded. "Flopit an' me think nice-cums."

"No," said William; "I mean what name do you have for me when you're—when you're thinking about me?"

Miss Pratt seemed to be puzzled. "I mean like this," William explained: "For instance, when you first came I always thought of you as Milady."

"Ess. Boo-fums."

"But now I don't," he said. "Now I think of you by another name when I'm alone. It—it just sort of came to me. It was about as strange a thing as I ever knew of. Don't you think so?"

"Ess. It uz dest weird!" she answered. "What are dat pitty names?"

"I called you," said William huskily and reverently—"I called you My Baby Talk Lady."

Bang!

They were startled by a crash from within the library. A heavy weight seemed to have fallen, or to have been hurled, a considerable distance. Stepping to the window, William beheld a large volume lying in a distorted attitude at the foot of the wall opposite to that in which the reading lamp was a fixture. Mr. Parcher had given up and was now hastening to his bed in the last faint hope of saving his reason.

William gazed upon the fallen Plutarch. "Somebody must 'a' thrown it at a bug or something, I guess." Then a second explosion sent its reverberations through the house.

"My goodness!" Miss Pratt exclaimed.

William laughed reassuringly. "It's only a door blew shut upstairs," he said.

Unfortunately for him, Joe Bullitt now made his appearance. Mr. Bullitt, though almost a year younger than either William or Johnnie Watson, was of a masterful disposition. Moreover, in regard to Miss Pratt, his affections were in as ardent a state as those of his rivals, and he lacked Johnnie's meekness. He firmly declined to be shunted by Miss Pratt, who was trying to favor William's cause, according to a promise he had won of her. Regardless of her efforts, Mr. Bullitt descended upon William and his Baby Talk Lady and received from the latter a honeyed greeting, somewhat to the former's astonishment.

"Oh, goody cute!" cried Miss Pratt. "Here's big Bruvva Josie-Joe!" And she lifted her little dog close to Mr. Bullitt's face, guiding one of Flopit's paws with her fingers. "Stroke big Bruvva Josie-Joe's pint teeks, darlin' Flopit." (Josie-Joe's pink cheeks were indicated by the expression "pint teeks" evidently, for her accompanying action was to pass Flopit's paw lightly over those glowing surfaces.) "At's nice!" she remarked. "Stroke him gently, p'eshus Flopit, an' nen we'll coax him to make pitty singin' for us, like us did yestiday."

She turned to William. "Coax him to make pitty singin'. I love his voice. I'm dest crazy over it. Isn't co?"

William's passion for Mr. Bullitt's voice appeared to be under control. He laughed coldly, almost harshly. "Him sing?" he said. "Has he been tryin' to sing around here? I wonder the family didn't call for the police!"

"Well, they will," Bullitt retorted. "If you ever spring one o' your solos on 'em!" And, turning to Miss Pratt, he laughed loudly and bitterly. "You ought to hear Silly Bill sing—some time when you don't mind goin' to bed sick for a couple o' days!"

"Let's all sing," the tactful Miss Pratt proposed hastily. "Come on, May and Cousin Johnnie Jump-Up!" she called to Miss Pratt and Mr. Watson. "Singin' school, girls an' boys! Singin' school! Ding, ding! Singin' school bell's a-wingin'!"

The diversion was successful. Miss Pratt and Mr. Watson joined the other group with alacrity, and the five young people were presently seated together upon the steps of the porch, sending their voices out upon the air and up to Mr. Parcher's window in the song they found loveliest that summer.

The singers thought so highly of the words that Mr. Parcher missed not one, especially as the vocal rivalry between Josie-Joe and Ickle Boy Baxter incited each of them to prevent Miss Pratt from hearing the other.

William sang loudest of all. Mr. Parcher had at no time any difficulty in recognizing his voice.

Oh, I love my love in the morning,
And I love my love at night;
I love my love in the dawning
And when the stars are bright.
Some may love the sunshine,
Others may love the dew;
Some may love the raindrops,
But I love only you-oo-oo!
By the stars up above
It is you I love-huv!
Yes, I love own-lay you!

They sang it four times; then Mr. Bullitt sang his solo, "Tell Her, O Golden Moon, How I Adore Her," William following with "The Violate Loves the Cowslip, but I Love Yew," and after that they all sang "Oh, I Love My Love in the Morning" again. All this while that they sang of love Mr. Parcher was moving to and fro upon his bed, not more than eighteen feet in an oblique upward slanting line from the heads of the serenaders.

Miss Jane Baxter opened her eyes upon the newborn day, and her first thoughts were of Mr. Parcher—that is, he was already in her mind when she awoke, a circumstance to be accounted for on the ground that his conversation during her quiet convalescence in his library had so fascinated her that in all likelihood she had been dreaming of him.

Then, too, Jane and Mr. Parcher had a bond in common, though Mr. Parcher did not know it. Not without result had William repeated Miss Pratt's inquiry in Jane's hearing, "Who is that curious child?" Jane had preserved her sang froid, but the words remained with her, for she was one of those who ponder and retain in silence.

He Knew Too Much.

A curious Malayan legend says that in olden times the waters surrounding Singapore were so infested with swordfish as to make it impossible for the fishermen to pursue their daily task. A boy advised the rajah to let down into the water freshly peeled stems of the banana plant, and this being done, the fish imbedded their swords in the stems and were easily killed. The boy genius was considered a danger to the throne, and he was executed lest he grow up and become a conspirator.

"GET WISE"—IN TIME

WHY not get wise in time? Why wait till it is too late? People all over the country, north, south, east and west, are getting wise to the ruinous results of out-of-town buying. Thinking people are now refusing to patronize out-of-town houses. Are we going to wait until we are knocked down and run over before we "get wise"? Let us spend our time and money in building up something that is ours. Patronage of home business means the building up of a strong industrial community of our own. Neglect of home business interests means the building up of a machine that will one day crush us without mercy. Let us build for ourselves and for our friends and neighbors. Let us "get wise" before it is too late.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

A RUN ON PEAS.

PEAS WITH CARROTS.—One cupful shelled peas, four young carrots, one cupful stock or water, two tablespoonfuls milk, four tablespoonfuls butter, one teaspoonful sugar, one egg yolk, one teaspoonful salt, one-half teaspoonful pepper, one tablespoonful chopped parsley. Cut the carrots into thin slices and cook slowly for fifteen minutes in a saucepan with the stock or water, butter and seasonings, then add the peas and cook together until they are both tender. Beat up the yolk of egg with the milk, stir into the vegetables and cook for five minutes longer, but do not allow to boil again. Add the chopped parsley and serve very hot in a border of boiled rice.

Buttered Peas.—One quart shelled peas, four tablespoonfuls butter, one-half teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful cornstarch, one pinch sugar, grated nutmeg, bread croutons. Put the peas into a saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of the butter, the salt and a small quantity of boiling water and boil over a quick fire until tender. Blend the remainder of the butter with the cornstarch, put it into the peas, stir them carefully until thickened, then add another tablespoonful of butter divided into small pieces, the sugar and nutmeg. Pour the peas into a hot dish and garnish with the croutons.

Peas With Bacon.—One quart shelled peas, six slices bacon, one chopped onion, four tablespoonfuls white sauce, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-quarter teaspoonful pepper, one-half teaspoonful sugar, fried croutons, parsley. Boil the peas until tender, then drain and keep hot. Next chop the bacon and fry for a few minutes, add the onion and the peas, then add the sauce and the seasonings. Let all simmer for eight minutes, turn out on a hot dish and garnish with the croutons of bread, sprinkle over a little chopped parsley and serve.

Peas a la Tartare.—Cold cooked green peas, tartare sauce. Lettuce or chopped aspic jelly. Mix together the peas and enough tartare sauce to moisten them well. Heap them up in a glass dish and arrange either a border of lettuce leaves or chopped aspic jelly.

MRS. WILLIAM J. SMITH DIES IN GIDEON. MO.

Former Resident of This City Passes Away After Illness of Several Weeks.

Word was received by relatives in this city Monday announcing the death of Mrs. William J. Smith which occurred at her home in Gideon, Mo., following a several weeks' serious illness. The deceased was a resident of this city until five years ago, when she moved with her husband to Missouri.

Mrs. Smith was a daughter of the late James Everhart, of this city, and had a large acquaintance here. Besides a husband and two children, Eula and Howard, together with two brothers, Riley and Meedy Everhart, and one sister, Mrs. J. P. Uery, of this city, and a half sister, Mrs. Emma Thomas, of Austin, survive. The deceased was a member of the First Methodist church of this city. The remains will be brought here for funeral services and burial and is expected to arrive late this afternoon. The body will be taken to the home of Meedy Everhart, at 226 South Broadway, where friends may view the remains this evening and Wednesday morning. The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon. Interment will be in Riverview cemetery.

MEMBERS OF LOCAL CATHOLIC CHURCH RAISING WAR FUND

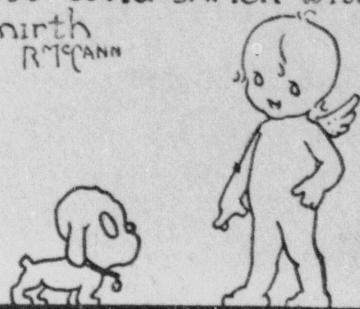

St. Ambrose Congregation will Assist in Big Contribution of One Million Dollars.

Six committees consisting of members of the St. Ambrose Catholic church are at work raising $300 among the members of the St. Ambrose parish, of this city and the St. Joseph parish, of Four Corners, as their quota of the $1,000,000 which is being raised throughout the United States by the Catholic church for the purpose of erecting recreation buildings for the Catholic young men now in service for their country. The committees report that they are meeting with splendid success and from all indications it is expected that the two churches will far surpass their quota.

While the regiments were stationed along the border during the Mexican trouble, recreation camps for Catholic young men were established which proved very popular. The large sum of money which is being raised will be used in erecting buildings at the different camps and supplying them with equipment for the amusement of the young men, good literature, etc. The buildings will be arranged so that they can be converted into a church where regular Catholic services can be held.

The committees have been busy the past few days calling on members of the two parishes and they expect to make their final report next Monday. Every catholic is expected to contribute to this fund.
